REPORT OF THE
SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

First term taught by Miss Sonora A. Sawyer, of Henniker. A good teacher and a profitable term.

Second term taught by Lottie M. Newton, of Henniker. Miss Newton is well adapted to instruct youth; retains her former record. Scholars orderly. Made good progress in their studies.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

First and second terms taught by Ella F. Whitcomb, of Henniker. A small school, but the closing examination revealed that Miss Whitcomb, with her flock, did not labor in vain.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

First term taught by Etta L. Huntington, of Henniker. Miss H. appears to love her work; such a teacher will succeed. Closing examination satisfactory.

Second term taught by Nellie S. McAlpine, of Henniker. Miss M. left her school prematurely the twelfth week of the session, which was then taken in charge by Miss Huntington and closed the third week of her tutorship. School appeared well at my first visit, and showed a decided improvement at the final close. Presume both teachers did their part, as well as scholars.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

First term taught by Emma M. Wood, of Henniker. Miss Wood is young and I fear some of the scholars took the advantage of her age and amiable disposition, and the school was not so profitable as it ought to have been. Notwithstanding, there was a fair improvement in some of the studies.

Second term taught by Herbert D. Gould, of Frances-town. Mr. Gould did well, considering the dilapidated condition of the school-house, and the aptness on the part of some of the parents to find fault; there may be some cause, but the teacher is not wholly to blame.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

First and second terms taught by Frances H. Perry, of Henniker. Miss Perry is a veteran teacher and knows how to conduct a school. Scholars did well.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

First term taught by Carrie L. Morse, of Henniker. Miss Morse is not out of her place when in the school room with eighteen smart scholars. Very good progress made.

Second term taught by Clara C. Gutterson, of Henniker. This term was a success. Care being taken, Miss Gutterson will become one of our best teachers.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

First and second terms taught by Addie L. Howe, of Henniker. Three visits made by S. S. committee. If Miss Howe should exercise more energy, I do not hesitate to say that she will make a good teacher. A fair degree of improvement made.

Third term taught by Susan C. Eastman, of Henniker. Miss Eastman is a teacher of many years experience, and a practical scholar. Her aim is thoroughness. She succeeded well in this school.

DISTRICT NO. 8.

First term taught by Lottie M. Newton, a good disciplinarian. The teacher labored hard and accomplished much.

Second term taught by Ada M. Carr, of Henniker. Miss Carr is a pleasant teacher, and generally wins the good will of her scholars. Good progress made.

DISTRICT NO. 10.

First term taught by Laura S. Patten, of Henniker. Your committee meets a good school here—one of the best, and well conducted. Miss Patten knows how.

Second term taught by Nettie M. Peabody, of Henniker. Miss Peabody is a fine scholar, and can impart her knowledge to those who come under her tuition. There are many found in this school who do appreciate a good teacher.

DISTRICT NO. 11.

First term taught by Clara A. James, of Derry. Miss James has taught several schools in this town before, and is well known as a first class teacher, and a fine scholar. This is a large school for one to teach in these modern days—different from old times, when a reader, speller, grammar, geography and arithmetic composed the list of text-books,—but she was equal to the task. Can say to teacher and scholars, Well done.

Second term taught by Miss James, assisted by Ada M. Carr. Teachers and scholars, well done; no fault to find.

Third term taught by your committee, assisted by George Carr, of Henniker, who had charge of the recitations of some twenty-five of the small scholars, and faithfully performed the duties assigned him. The desire on the part of the scholars, to acquire that which our public schools were established for, made it a very pleasant school, and I may add that the future will find many of them—and I hope all—good and worthy citizens.

DISTRICT NO. 12.

First and second terms taught by Edna F. Connor, of Henniker. Miss Connor has fitted herself for this work, having graduated at the New London Seminary last year. The first term was a profitable one: the second was interrupted by sickness in the teacher's home, and the devotion she has for her parents compelled her to leave the school unfinished, or without a final visit. One of the best orthographistic scholars in town is found in this school. The term is being finished by Miss Ella F. Whitcomb, an efficient teacher, and I trust will be successful.

DISTRICT NO. 13.

First term taught by Mary J. Dutton, of Hancock. Miss Dutton is very apt, and teaches thoroughly; recitations at closing examination were prompt and distinct.

Second term taught by Carrie L. Morse, who maintained the same degree of thoroughness.

GENERAL REMARKS.

Every term of school, with the exception of two, has been visited by your committee near the commencement and at the close. The schools have generally given satisfaction. The citizens of the town have reason to believe that their school money has been very advantageously expended the past year.

There has been no serious trouble in any of the schools, for, in most instances, the scholars have done about right; and we have had able and competent teachers, with but few exceptions, a few just coming forward, while many have had large experience and a good reputation.

One of the greatest evils we have to contend is the multiplicity of text-books in the same branch of studies, which increase the number of classes to the detriment of the schools. There should be some better means adopted by which this evil will be done away. The present law helps some. There has been a thorough change in geographies the past year, and by so doing they must remain three years by law. After due consideration, and with the advice of some of the best educators of the state, I concluded to introduce the one I have. It takes the place of fifteen others. The school-houses are nearly new, with the exception of the one in District No. 4, and the one in District No. 7, and these are in urgent need of reconstruction. Those that have been built within a few years are convenient for the number of scholars they were designed to accommodate.

The one in the village, although an elegant house, is not suitable to accommodate the requirements of the scholars. There should be two departments, so that the more advanced can have a privilege of studying the higher English branches, without detriment to the others, and not be obliged to send them away, for it can be done at home much better, and with less expense.

We hope that the citizens of our pleasant village will take the matter in hand, and not let the youth suffer from want of an education by their neglect. By a careful examination of the statistical table, I find there has been, (although by more than an average attendance compared with several years past), over eleven years of schooling lost by non-attendance. Parents and guardians, can this be true? If so, who is to blame? and where is the remedy?

I add below a brief educational history of the town:

HISTORY OF EDUCATION IN HENNIKER.

One of the principal conditions upon which the township was granted was that "one right of land should be reserved for schooling." As in all other towns, the early settlers, although strongly imbued with the principle that common schools were one of the greatest means of preserving the liberties of a nation, had so many other affairs demanding their attention that but little could be done for them. Notwithstanding all the difficulties they had to encounter, the cause of education for their children received a good deal of attention.

The first settlement of the town was in 1761. Mrs. Josiah Ward taught the first school in this town, using her kitchen for a school room. The stump of a large tree, over which Mr. Ward built his log house, was the table used. This was a private school, the town not having yet been incorporated, and there were not over twenty children in the township.

This was in the summer of 1764. The first money raised by the town for schooling was in March, 1773, when nine pounds were raised "to support a schule." The whole sum raised for the first eighteen years after the settlement of the town was about two hundred and thirty dollars—less than thirteen dollars per year. Most of the schools, during this time, were taught by married women whilst attending to the ordinary duties of the household.

The first school-house was a log one, and was built about the opening of the Revolution. This was in the southeast part of the town, and at the close of the war there were four log houses for schooling in different parts of the township.

The average amount raised for schooling for a large number of years, after the close of the Revolution, was about one hundred and sixty dollars. A school was at one time taught in the east "porch" of the old meeting-house, still standing, built nearly a century ago.

The schools were under the supervision of the selectmen of the town until 1804, when a committee was appointed by the town to hire the teachers and care generally for them. Receipts for services as teachers were as follows :

"HENNIKER, Oct. 26, 1774.

"Then received of Aaron Adams twelve shillings lawful money for my wife's teaching school. I say received by me.

"OTIS HOWE."

School-houses were built as the settlers required, without much attention being paid to their situation, until 1800, when the town was divided into ten districts, and in 1805 new school-houses were ordered to be built by the town in each district. Additional districts were afterwards created until the number reached thirteen. One of these has been abolished, the families once residing in it having moved away.

The first select school in town was taught in 1826. Such schools were taught every year until 1836, when an academy was built, in which a school flourished for upwards of twenty-five years. One or two terms a year are now taught in it. There should be a new organization, and it will become one of our modern model schools, for we have within the radius of a mile upwards of one hundred and sixty scholars.

For more than half a century last past, the town has been quite generous in voting money to support schools. At the present time, most of the districts have three terms during the year.

Most of the school-houses have been rebuilt and furnished with modern improvements. The elegant school-house in No. 11 was built in 1867, at a cost of three thousand dollars. A beautiful and convenient house was built in No. 8 in 1873, at a cost of two thousand dollars.

The division of the public school money has caused some contention, but has been divided for a large number of years satisfactorily to all, one third among the districts, and the remaining two thirds according to the number of scholars.

Henniker has produced quite a number of distinguished men and women, who have filled, and some of whom are still filling, honorable and respectable positions in life ; viz., 1 governor, 1 U. S. senator, 5 judges, 22 college graduates, 8 lawyers, 20 clergymen, 30 physicians, 4 educators, 2 editors, 2 poets and authors, 1 lady physician, resident physician for the Sultan of Turkey, 1 lady missionary in India for 39 years, 1 gentleman missionary in India for 25 years, 2 musicians, the first violinist in the country, and a young lady, the most wonderful pianist.

Thanks to Col. L. W. Cogswell, for the facts and dates so gratuitously furnished your committee.
